1 Vampires & Werewolves: Stereotypes

Summary: We draw some people and discuss stereotypes. We watch a video that talks about stereotypes. We revise our drawings. We identify stereotypes about werewolves and vampires (in order to understand jokes about them)

Time Slot: 1 Morning A

2 Draw a pilot or surgeon

Kids are given the task of drawing a pilot or a surgeon. Do not in any way indicate or hint at any particular gender for the drawing.

The drawing should be a rough version, stick figures even. Not an art project.

The goal is to see if they put a gender on the drawing.

(optional: Then draw a vampire or a werewolf)

3 Next, watch this video

4 Redraw the pictures in the opposite gender

After the exercise, they are challenged to draw another one in a different gender...maybe in better quality. Sample??

5 Discuss stereotypes Vampires and Werewolves

This is actually the real purpose of the activity. Understanding the stereotypes will help the students understand the jokes.

5.1 Vampires

- hate the sun
- wooden stakes kill them

- afraid of garlic
- live in coffins or caskets
- say blah blah blah
- can turn into bats
- have a cowlick
- dress in a gothic way
- bite people in the neck
- live in Transylvania

5.2 Werewolves

They howl at the moon.

They bite.

They are like dogs sometimes because wolves are related to dogs.

Wolves are called lycanthropes, which means wolf-human in greek.

Lycan is wolf, throphe is human. Misanthrope person who doesn't like other people.

They howl, sometimes at the moon.

They have tails.

Ware, Wear, and Were- should not be confused. A Ware is something you sell, Wear is what you do with clothes, and Wer- is believed to come from an old word for man, though some people think it comes from another word that means outsider.

Vampires & Werewolves: Video-Book Red

Summary: We read a book about people who have a stereotype about a "red" crayon that is really a blue crayon.

Vampires & Werewolves: Vampire-Werewolf Tag

Summary: Play tag where some children are "vampires" and "werewolves," each with their own unique powers and abilities.

Time Slot: 4 Park

- Vampire vs. Werewolf Tag

Organize a game of tag where some children are "vampires" and others are "werewolves," each with their own unique powers and abilities.

What's the Time, Mr. Wolf?

Like something that walked right out of Grimm's Fairy Tales, What's the Time, Mr. Wolf? is an interesting play on the tag concept. Basically, one kid takes on the role as Mr. Wolf, and prowls the edges of their territory. The other kids are tasked with walking from the start line to the finish line. They have to ask "What's the Time, Mr. Wolf?" and the wolf shouts out different numbers, with those numbers being how many steps the kids get to take to get closer to the finish line.

Watch out for when Mr. Wolf says "Midnight," though, because that's the hunting hour and they'll come running to tag you out of the game. During the midnight hour, kids race to get to the finish line before getting tagged. Anyone who's tagged gets sent out of the game, and the game restarts back at the start line.

Vampire Bats Tag

One Halloween-ified version of tag you can play during the autumn months is Vampire Bats Tag. This one is a little more complicated than regular tag.

During Vampire Bats Tag, one kid (or more depending on the size of the group) will start out as a vampire bat and one kid will start out as a vampire hunter. The vampire bat will run around trying to bite (tag) as many humans as possible to turn them into vampire bats as well.

However, newly turned vampire bats can be turned back into humans by getting cured (tagged) by the vampire hunter.
